"Working with Glendale was a real pleasure. The whole process, from design to fit was absolutely faultless and we will most definitely use them again for any future projects."

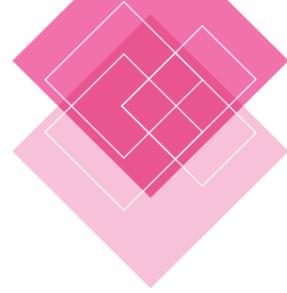

Director, Havwoods Ltd

"Glendale Interiors' efficiency shone out superbly from our initial contact with the team, through the design process and right through to completion... The quality of the furniture supplied is of high standard and its appearance remains as good as the day of installation. What was shown, detailed and ordered was what was supplied and installed. Glendale Interiors are highly recommended by NHG."

OFFICE ENVIRONMENTS

Work environments are changing! From uninspiring large offices crammed full of desks, to open-plan and collaborative spaces. Office interiors have evolved to reflect research that open plan workspaces boost creativity and help to create stronger team relationships. It also creates a much more pleasant and welcoming environment for clients and visitors.

Gensler's 2016 UK Workplace Survey found that workers were more likely to be innovative if they had access to a range of spaces supporting different working styles, including private, semi-private and open-plan environments.

DESKING CONFIGURATIONS

As working styles have evolved, so has the humble desk. Flexible layouts with products designed to have every element move into place without rules, offer innumerable combinations for dynamic and refreshing workspaces. Radial and bench desking create relaxed and collaborative environments. Height adjustable tables support standing meetings and the upcoming trend of hot desking, where employees have no designated workstation, has proven to keep workers fresh, inspired and motivated.

04 MEETING AREAS

MEETING AREAS

Lighter, powerful, wireless technology has untethered the workspace more than ever. Offices can be more comfortable, stimulating relaxed collaboration. The movement towards creating timeout zones breaks away from the corporate feel of an office and can be extremely beneficial for productivity and staff satisfaction.

Multi-purpose spaces can be utilised for everything from multimedia presentations to casual breakout areas. Workspaces should flex to provide a variety of spaces and destinations for workers to inhabit, that promote movement throughout the day.

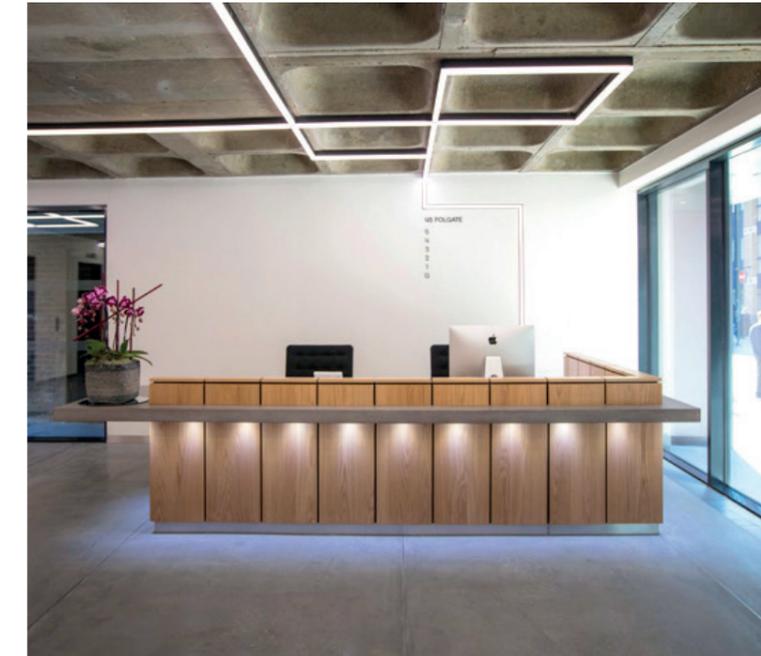

05 RECEPTION AREAS

RECEPTION AREAS

Did you know first impressions are made within 11 seconds?

Within seconds of entering your office, potential clients make up their minds about you and your company. In a glance, they instantly decide how trustworthy you are, if you're successful, and at times if you're good enough to do business with. Add a few quirky touches, and create an area that speaks out and represents your company.

06 SEATING

SEATING

Make your people comfortable

No other piece of office furniture plays a more significant role in the life of the professional. The importance of a good office chair should not be underestimated. Sound seating which provides lower back support and promotes good posture is a must! A healthy posture promotes greater overall comfort, productivity and improved awareness. An increasing number of working days are lost to back pain, neck strain, headaches and stress. It is important that we do everything we can to ensure the well-being of office staff.

07 STORAGE

STORAGE

The appearance and condition of your office says a lot about your business and workplace culture. A clean and presentable office not only ensures that your staff stay healthy and motivated, but it also tells clients and customers that you value and exhibit professionalism at all times, leaving a good impression on them.

Did you know? Fitted storage can increase floor space by up to 200%.

08 BREAKOUT FURNITURE

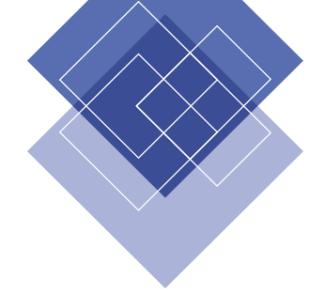

BREAKOUT FURNITURE

As many businesses look for ways they can increase collaborative working, reforming the kitchen space is a no-brainer. The kitchen has now become an innovative way to bring colleagues together, forming new personal connections, boosting staff morale and boosting company productivity.

"We feel appreciated and looked after and more inclined to put in greater effort for our team."

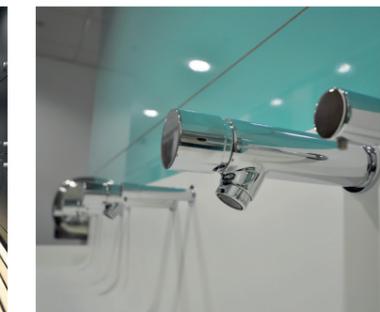

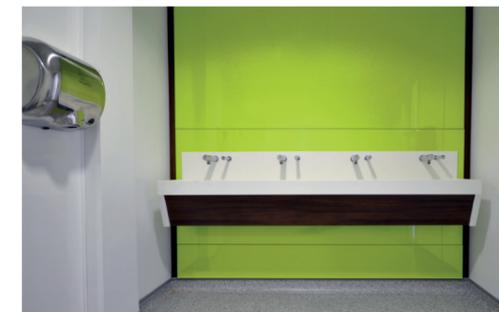

09 WASHROOMS

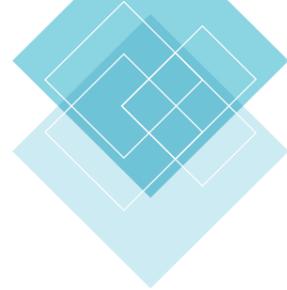

WASHROOMS

Washroom functionality should be a main consideration, but it's not the only thing to keep in mind. Design can have a serious influence, with an average worker spending 41 hours each year there, industry leaders are enhancing bathroom environments to promote well-being, productivity and chance collaboration.

45% of workers complain they have a stressful journey to the office. Reduce those stress levels by encouraging exercise. Install cycle racks, a shower, changing room and lockers.

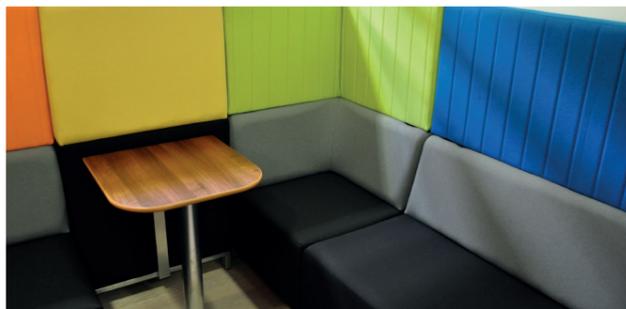

DESIGN

Established over 40 years, at Glendale Interiors we pride ourselves on excellence in care, consistency and creativity. We understand the psychology of interiors. With our experience, expertise and passion we will develop your project from conception to its completion. With any project, our team will first seek to gain an in-depth understanding of your company or organisation in view of establishing the very best solution to your workplace requirements.

Our designers will then create a variety of creative yet practical solutions & budget options for consideration and development. We will take care of you every step of the way and your dedicated project manager will oversee every aspect of your office interior fit-out. We carry out all aspects of contracting work, providing continual assessments. Our team values honesty, integrity and quality.

It is important to us that you are 100% satisfied. Post installation we undertake fine detail checks, supply extensive warranties, plus a long term after-care service means you can enjoy your new workspace with complete peace of mind.

"We knew we needed to update our offices but did not know where to start! We contacted Glendale Interiors and they sent in their design team who surveyed the whole area, met with all staff and came up with a full workplace assessment including detailed plans, storage audits, colour schemes and even sample pieces of furniture. After only a few revisions we felt confident to go ahead with them, they steered and supported us through the whole process with regular updates and the quality and finishes of the offices were exactly as we expected. They definitely will be our 'go-to' company for any future creative workspace projects."
